Foreword

Like previous years, Safety and Rights Society (SRS) has conducted a yearly survey on workplace accident deaths - the eighth in the series, and finally published this report.

This present report includes information on workplace accident deaths that took place in 2018 by monitoring 26 daily newspapers (15 national and 11 regional).

A number of the media reports on workplace accidents have also been subject to on-site investigations as part of our work on assisting families obtains compensation.

This publication will be useful for workers, regulatory bodies, which enforce the Bangladesh Labour Act 2006, the media and rights organisations, who are working to improve workplace health and safety conditions.

We realize that many workers die from other means - on the way to seeking work, in political protests or in house fires etc - but these are not related to their work and so are not included in this report. This report also does not include Bangladesh workers who die outside the country.

We would like to express our sincere appreciation to Diakonia - a development partner of SRS - which has been supporting and guiding SRS since 2012 in carrying out its work on workplace health and safety in Bangladesh, including this publication.

We would also like express our sincere gratitude to Knowledge Industry Ltd for conducting workplace investigations across the country on behalf of SRS.

As always, any comments or suggestions for further improvement of this report would be highly appreciated and acknowledged with gratitude.

About Safety and Rights Society

Safety and Rights Society, a national NGO established in 2009, is working for improving workplace and work-related safety in Bangladesh and assisting those injured or at risk of injury, to enforce their rights under the law.

Though Safety and Rights has a particular focus on labour rights, it is also concerned with wider public safety issues involving transport, drugs and other consumer products as well as other human rights issues.

Bangladesh Worker Safety Programme

The main programme of Safety and Rights is the Bangladesh Worker Safety Programme (BWSP). This programme, started in 2006 by an international NGO named Centre for Corporate Accountability, is now run by Safety and Rights.

BWSP aims to improve the health and safety conditions faced by workers in Bangladesh and assist workplace deceased victim's dependent families and injured workers in getting compensation as per the law.

BWSP works to improve conditions by:

- undertaking research to find out occupational health and safety situation in Bangladesh, including the numbers and circumstances of workplace deaths and injuries;
- promoting the reform of health and safety legislations and policies;
- providing training on workplace health and safety and other labour rights issues;
- assessing the activities of the Department of Inspection for Factories and Establishments and other regulatory bodies;
- providing health and safety management training and guidance to employers;
- assisting trade unions in raising health and safety concerns with employers and enforcement bodies;
- filing public interest litigation with the aim of ensuring that state bodies comply with laws to provide workers with safe and healthy conditions at work;
- working to ensure the effectiveness of National Industrial Health and Safety Council and the implementation of National Occupational Health and Safety Policy;
- assisting workers to get monetary help from the government's labour welfare fund. It assists dependent families of workers and injured workers gain compensation by monitoring national and regional newspapers for reports of workplace accident deaths;
- investigating the circumstances of workplace deaths & injuries (with Knowledge Industry, a consultancy firm) to help them get compensation;
- obtaining information about workplace injuries through research at hospitals;
- informing employers of their obligation to pay compensation or filing cases in the Labour Court (with Bangladesh Legal Aid Services Trust- BLAST).

Chapter one

Workplace death analysis of 2018

1. Background

Occupational injuries and fatalities are common phenomenon in Bangladesh as elsewhere across the world. Common causes of occupational casualties include falls, machine-related incidents, motor vehicle accidents, electrocution, falling objects or equipment, homicides and suicides. The nature of workplace deaths in Bangladesh is different from other developed and developing countries. Because, most of the workplace accidents occur in the country are actually preventable only by improving knowledge and awareness of employers, workers and law enforcement agencies. In every year about 20 workers die after being suffocated by inhaling poisonous gas while entering into the confined-space like septic tank for cleaning or removing construction materials. Such deaths easily can be prevented following appropriate precautions. Every year Safety and Rights Society monitors daily newspaper reports and made analysis to know occupational health and safety situation in the country, including the numbers and circumstances of workplace deaths. This report is the eight in the series.

2. Methodology

This analysis provides details of workplace deaths that took place in Bangladesh in 2018 in the manufacturing, construction, service, agricultural and transport sectors. Information about the deaths was obtained by monitoring 15 national¹ daily newspapers and 11 regional² daily newspapers (published from Barisal, Chittagong, Khulna, Rajshahi and Sylhet).

2.1 Kinds of deaths monitored

This report focuses on deaths of workers at the workplace arising out of issues relating to occupational safety and health and concerned with the management of the work, including details of transport workers (drivers or conductors and helpers working in vehicles) who have died in the course of their work. However, the report does not include deaths of workers travelling to or from work as these deaths primarily raise issues of road traffic safety rather than occupational health and safety.

The report also does not include deaths of workers as a result of police, or other kinds of violence or in incidents outside of the workplace - as none of these relate to occupational health and safety issues.

This report focuses on industrial and service sector deaths - but it does include details of certain agricultural deaths (where the newspaper reports clearly indicate a workplace safety issue). Very few agricultural sector deaths are reported in the newspapers and those are reported mainly died from lightning strikes.

Deaths at sea is another phenomenon where most of the cases the newspaper publish the list of missing seamen - it is very difficult to know whether these have anything to do with the management of health and safety issues, and in addition, further press reports often fail to indicate whether or not the workers have died or survived.

2.2 Accuracy of the information

The prime source of this information is from monitoring deaths that are reported in the selected national and regional newspapers. Relying on this data creates two problems. The first problem is that newspaper reports almost certainly do not reflect, by a high margin, the actual number of workplace deaths that have taken place.

The second problem concerns the accuracy of the newspaper reports themselves. To what extent, can we be sure that the correct facts about the deaths have been reported in the newspapers? Working with Knowledge Industry- a consultancy firm- we have investigated 134 (52 injury cases and 82 death cases) of the total incidents reported in 2018 where 106 (101 male 5 female) workers died and 52 (50 male and 2 female) workers injured and these show, interestingly, that in the great majority of the cases, the key information contained in the papers was accurate - though it was not unusual for there to be some small errors in the spelling of the names of the deceased, the incident address and the circumstances of the death. In a few cases, we found that some deaths were not work-related or the location of the death could not be identified.

3. Analysis of workplace deaths

Workplace deaths of 2018 have been analyzed by number of deaths and number of accidents, district and sector-wise deaths, month of the year, age, gender and cause of deaths.

In 2018, a considerable number of workers (60) died from lightning strikes. Almost all the workers (59) were involved in agricultural sector. Another alarming cause of workplace deaths was road accidents which are increasing every year. Other main reasons of workplace fatalities include electrocution, fall from a height, crushed by objects or equipment, earth collapse and building/roof/wall collapse.

The newspaper-based survey of Safety and Rights Society showed that 593 workers (12 female and 581 male) died in 485 workplace accidents in 2018. The number of deaths has increased by 155 than in 2017.
